POETRY. THE FALL OF ADAM. The following images are such as none but an imagination truly poetical could conceive. They are descriptive of the moral consequences of Adam's fall:— "Fall Disease arose And blew o'er earth his pestilential breath; A train of evils followed on his steps. There came Misfortune, with his iron scythe, Drooping with human blood; there Envy stalk'd And fann'd the flames of hell—fell Fury there Yell'd to the winds, and stamp'd the hollow ground: There came a melancholy shadow on, Telling her sorrows to the list'ning night; Folded her arms upon her heaving bosom; Her face directed to the dewy moon. There came Remorse absorbed in gloomy thoughts. There rush'd Despair—his dark eye roll'd in blood; He tore his mantle from his raging breast, And plunged his dagger in his heart. There came Poor Lunacy, in tattered robes, and waded A straw, and told the kingdoms which he ruled. Lastly came Death, clothed in his night of terrors, And clasped his victim in his shiv'ring arms."

LONDON POLICE. Mansion House.—An Assumed Gentleman.—The parish officers of St. Swithin, in London Stone, applied some days ago for a warrant against a young man named John Stansfield, one of the waiters at the celebrated 18-penny dinner house, for having deserted his wife; and Merrilies, the constable of the parish, went to Dover to execute it. The particulars of the case were curious and comic. Stansfield was in the habit of picking up a good many two-pences; and dashed away in his moments of leisure, into the midst of the fashionable movements. On the 21st of February, in the present year, and got tired of her in a few months. He then proposed a suspension of the conjugal rites, and offered his wife a separate maintenance at the rate of ten shillings a week, which she accepted for the sake of her health, as well as other comforts. The separation, however, in this instance, was effected on the part of the defendant as a means of accomplishing a more agreeable connexion with another, and a second Mrs Stansfield made her appearance. A husband naturally arose out of the detection, and the defendant thought the best course he could pursue was to cut and run. He accordingly decamped, bag and baggage, and arrived at an inn at Dover, where he ordered the waiters about "like a real gentleman," and strutted in a fur coat and gold watch, with the chain festooned from his neck into his waistcoat pocket. He was not long in Dover, when he wrote the following affectionate epistle to his new enamourata:— "Dearest Wife—I rite to you yonce more hoping that I shal not have to rite no more til I have the pleasurable opportunity of imbrasing you in my Harms. I hopes cinerely from my hart that you wil Com with the bayor of this note for I am comfortable settled with regard of some things and I ham out of all the troubles that I was hin when I lett you and I hope that I for ever shal remain. My Deer this gentleman is the gard of coach and if you wil cum with him, he wil bring you safe to me. please be so kind as to cum with him, for without you there is no happiness in this life, so I remain your obeiant and kind husband til death. J. S. If you have no "blunt" I'll pay coachman when he brings you down with him, but I do hop you'll cum down vether or not. This letter was brought to town by the guard of one of the coaches, and delivered to the lady to whom it was addressed; but the complainant, who had been watching her rival's movements, managed to get possession of it, and immediately handed it to the parish officers, who, conjecturing that the ten shillings a week would be discontinued, took the necessary measures to secure the body of the deserter. Merrilies stated that he saw the woman, whom he believed to be the second wife of the defendant, get upon the Dover coach, under the protection of the guard, and that he travelled on the same vehicle. A good deal of caution was used by the guard and the lady, upon the arrival of the coach at Dover, but witness followed them up close, and after several twistings and turnings, he had the satisfaction of seeing the wished-for meeting. "Oh, Nancy, darling," said the defendant—"Oh, my Jack," cried the lady. "Beg pardon," said witness, "but I've got a warrant to bring you to London to support your other wife, Mr Stansfield." This intelligence was received in a valiant manner. "I am able to support them both well," said the defendant, "and I shall give bail;" so off they all came to town. Mr Hobler, Jr. appeared for the defendant, and said that his client was not married to the lady, who went to visit him at Dover, and that he could be charged with no legal offence, for he had paid his wife up to last Saturday night, and had no idea of leaving her to the parish. The wife said that she was convinced her husband had married the other female at Christ Church, in Surrey, and it was reported he had several other wives. The defendant was then remanded.

For seats or extra Coaches in Boston, apply at Doon-littles City Tavern, Brattle street, and Washington Coffee House, 153, Washington street, in Providence at Tremont Mail Stage Office, corner of Market square and South Main street, and to the Agent on board the Boats. ORIENTAL SHAVING SOAP.—A new and important discovery!! This article is justly celebrated for its peculiar properties in rendering the Beard soft and easy to cut. It supercedes other soaps on account of its liquid form, making the process of shaving easier and quicker. The article needs no recommendation but one simple trial, which will prove its qualities. Directions.—Drop three drops into a cup, wet your brush in warm water and rub it, and it will produce an elegant fine lather which will not dry for hours. WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 1834.

STENOGRAPHIC GLIMPSES OF CONGRESS.
No. LXXI.

Washington, Feb. 21, 1834.—The President had a Drawing Room last night, the last, it is understood, of the season. The company was much more numerous and crowded than the previous one, but to my eye less brilliant, because there was a greater proportion of gentlemen than ladies on the occasion. The foreign ministers were there, but a less number of the military and naval officers; the Heads of Department were there, but not all of their ladies. Mrs Woodbury was absent, who would always be missed in any circle. The "Daughter of Salem," the "Belle" of Baltimore, the "Flower" of Florida, the beauty and fashion of the city, and the suburbs—aye, and every section of the country, were there; but there were many fine faces and fine forms I saw at the former Drawing Room, whose absence I noted with some disappointment on the present occasion. There are many beautiful visions in this world, of which, like the Gardens of Irim, one can only catch a glimpse, and they vanish forever!

It is pleasant to see the venerable Chief receive his friends and fair country women, and pay a passing compliment to familiar faces, and bestow a warm smile and grasp of the hand upon all. Though it is no pastime to stand up and welcome more than a thousand visitors, yet he never seems fatigued with the duty; his voice and smile and welcome, are all heart-warm to the last.

Among the strangers, I saw Gen. Swartwout, of New York there; and Col. Ellis, of New Haven. The Vice President and Senators, most of them, were present. The company continued promenading the gorgeous "East" till a late hour; and the ladies as they departed, Cast back a longing, lingering look behind.

The House and Senate have been engaged to-day on private business.

In the House, Mr Adams, of Mass., moved an amendment to the Journal of the House yesterday, by adding the occasion for which it adjourned, namely to attend the funeral of Mr Wirt. They did not debate the question, but there was a solitary member, I believe, who objected; the motion however, was carried, some one crying out faintly, and gently, "no," when the question was put. It was a pitiful opposition, to say the best of it.

The Senate were engaged with "distressing" memorials, and proceedings of public meetings—some approving, and some disapproving of the course of the administration. Mr Sprague presented a distressing memorial from Portland, and made a distressing speech upon it. Mr Shepley answered it; and by a reference to documentary evidence, shew that the Bank, like King Richard, had "first done the wrong, and then began to brawl."

Mr Forsyth was brought into the debate, and answered Mr Sprague's sneers in his usual courteous and epigrammatic manner. The proceedings of a public meeting in Pennsylvania was presented, complimenting the Senators, several of them by name, and pledging themselves to "stand by" the administration through good report and evil report.—Such things exasperate the opposition beyond all endurance. I absolutely pity them. I can write no more—my heart bleeds for their deep and agonizing "distress!"

REIS EFFENDI.

From the N. Y. Courier and Enquirer.

Later from France.—The packet ship Havre, Capt. Stoddard, arrived late last night from Havre, whence she sailed on the 19th ult.—We have received by her Paris papers of the 7th, and Havre of the 8th of January.

The dates from the Continent of Europe, are of course somewhat later than by the way of England. From Spain the accounts are rather less favorable to the cause of the Queen.

In the French Chamber of Deputies, M. d'Argenson and M. du Puyraveau, had declared "that the symbol of their faith is no longer a constitutional royalty, that their law is the republican code, that the declaration of the société des droits de l'homme is their gospel, and that Robespierre is their hero." A declaration which naturally has excited much astonishment and called for observation from all the journals.

Letters from Tiflis mention the death of the celebrated Persian Prince Abbas Mirza.

Constantinople, Nov. 2.—The Sultan has at length consented to allow the Greek Ambassador to come to Constantinople in a Greek ship of war.

The French squadron in the Levant has received orders to return to France.

Mr Lander has reached Liverpool from Fernando Po, and is in excellent health.

The Glasgow Herald, speaking of the proposed war with Russia, protests against it—and among its reasons assigns the following:

Should we go to war with Russia, there is too much reason to apprehend that hostilities betwixt this country and the United States will be the consequence. Our newspaper press, particularly the Liberal and Ministerial portion of it, is so outrageously abusive of the Emperor Nicholas, that, with the common feelings of humanity, he must desire to be revenged upon us; but he is well aware that if we were to blockade his Baltic ports, and prevent the produce of the estates of his nobles from getting to market, there would arise a spirit of discontent in Russia which would be in all likelihood fatal to him. Accordingly, therefore, it is understood that in contemplation of the probability of a war with Great Britain, the Emperor of Russia has made arrangements with the Americans by which they are to carry the whole of Russian produce intended for foreign markets in their ships, and hence will arise the old contest as to neutral bottoms making neutral goods, and being exempted from the right of search, which discussion will most probably land us in a war with the United States.

Accident.—As one of the Salem stages, drawn by six horses, was passing through Charter street, yesterday morning, the reins broke—when the horses turned in such a way as to disengage the coach from the forward wheels; there were eight passengers inside, who escaped without injury. The horses ran up Hanover street, at full speed, but were soon stopped by coming in contact with a cart.

The steamboat Bangor, building at New York, for the Boston and Bangor Steam Navigation Company, is expected here by the 1st of May. Her dimensions are 145 feet keel, 158 feet on deck, 25 feet beam, and 10 feet depth of hold.

POLICE COURT.

(Tuesday.)

"No. 8," Bridge Street Court, ahoy!—David Barter was arraigned upon complaint of a near neighbor, and former friend and housemate, charging him, "the said Barter, with keeping and maintaining a certain disorderly and ill-governed house, in Bridge Street Court, No. 8, and in said house, for his own lucere and proper gain, did suffer and permit divers evil disposed persons, as well men and women, of evil name, fame and conversation, to frequent and come together, and there to remain, drinking, tippling, swearing, fighting, &c., &c., and otherwise misbehaving themselves."

The first witness, having in former times been a resident in the same house with Barter, was able to testify to a charm—"seeing is believing;" and he gave a list of the young ladies, of established reputation, whose "name, fame, and conversation" have immortalized the West End.

The second witness lived opposite—was continually annoyed by gentlemen calling for Miss L., Miss B., &c., and for Barter's house—the young larks would insist upon entering the witness's house, both day and night—witness would tell where Barter lived, and the amorous applicants would always gain admittance there—Barter was never known to shut his hospitable door against any decent man. The witness frequently saw young clerks go into Barter's, with pieces of silk, calico, &c., for love tokens. He had heard "murder" cried in the premises, "but in general, the house was kept pretty orderly, considering the great run of business they had."

One witness had been graciously and condescendingly blessed with a polite bow, from Miss L.***, the most illustrious lady of honor in the "Court," and what he considered a still greater honor, his fellow-townswoman. She was illuminating Cambridge street, in the afternoon, and eclipsing the sun, by the splendour of her attire; or, as the deponent saith—"she was dressed in great agony, and it began to crawl through my notion, how she could go such a big figure, as she didn't seem to work much."

A number of the neighbors confirmed the above witness, and Veteran Reid, like a squadron of cuirassiers, charging an enemy whose ranks had been shaken by the well-directed fire of the artillery, completed the defeat of Barter, by swearing most irrefragably that when he went to arrest the prisoner on Saturday, he recognised in the house, the countenances of several of the most celebrated courtizans in the city.—Committed for trial at the Municipal Court.

William Glinchay was brought up for a violent and obscene assault on several ladies in Green street, on Monday evening. He also struck one of the ladies in the face. Several men witnessed the assault, and informed Reid, who immediately arrested him, and lodged him in jail. He was a little smashed on Monday afternoon, and was troublesome in the court house, and reeling about among the spectators—and when Mr Barker put him down, he drew a knife, and swore he would "give him the length of it." Committed for trial at the Municipal Court.

A worthy member.—William Thompson, a gray-headed gentleman, was found prostrate and embedded, like a petrification, in the upper stratum of clayey mud, in the new land. He stated that he was a member of a Temperance Society out of town, and on Monday, "wrestled with the spirit," but did not "prevail." In truth, Angel "White Face" boarded him in the fascinating disguise of a tumbler of hot sling, got down into his legs, loosened his underpinning, tripped him up, and threw him so hard, he never knew what hurt him. As he was a stranger in the city, and promised to leave immediately, no proceedings were instituted against him.

For the Morning Post.

Mr Editor—The course of the "Atlas" for some time past, has been so p-r-o-d-i-g-i-o-u-s, as to have been almost mysterious. Having in vain tried to rationally account for its profusion of mighty talk, I at length bless "Peter Simple" for a full and satisfactory solution. Its Editor must have partaken largely of "flapdoodle" lately:

"The Marine Officer came on board very angry at being left behind, and talked about a court-martial on me for disrespect, and neglect of stores entrusted to my charge—but O'Brien told me not to mind him or what he said. 'It's my opinion, Peter, that the gentleman has eaten no small quantity of flapdoodle in his life time.'"

"What's that, O'Brien?" replied I—"I never heard of it."

"Why, Peter," rejoined he, "it's the stuff they feed fools on."

For the Morning Post.

Mr Editor—Can you not, through the medium of your paper, suggest some better employment for THE TALL GENTLEMAN WITHOUT A NOSE, than that of going about the streets with a straw in his hand, with which to tickle the ears of young misses and school girls? If so, you will confer a great favor on the community by obtaining it for him.

Yours, &amp;c.

A BROTHER.

MASSACHUSETTS LEGISLATURE

(Tuesday, Feb. 25.—In the Senate—To-morrow, at 11 o'clock, was assigned for the choice of a preacher of the next election sermon.—

The committee on the Judiciary, were ordered to inquire if any and what further provisions of law are necessary for the future management and improvement of Warren Bridge, and for regulating and collecting the tolls accruing therefrom. Bill relating to unlawful oaths was taken up—but before taking the question on passing it to be engrossed, the Senate adjourned.

In the House—Petition of W. Lawrence and others of Spencer—of P. H. Thomas and others of Hancock—of J. Jewett and others—of G. P. Tenney and others of Rowley—severally on the License laws—of B. Crane and others of Berkeley for convention to revise the Constitution. Messrs Cushing, Thayer, White, Adams, and Farwood were appointed a committee to examine the report of the Treasurer of the Lunatic Hospital. Mr Eustis of Boston moved a reconsideration of the vote of yesterday whereby the House rejected the amendment of Mr Foster to the bill relating to licences which motion was laid on the table. The deposite question was then taken up which was especially assigned to this day, but before taking the question thereon, the House Adjourned.

CITY AFFAIRS.

At a meeting of the Mayor and Aldermen on Monday—

A letter from Dr Webster, offering the records of the committee of donations, of which his grandfather was chairman, read and thereupon ordered, that the thanks of the board be given to John W. Webster, M. D. for having placed in the care and keeping of the city, the records and proceedings of the committee of donations in the town of Boston, during the operation of the Boston Port Bill.

An order passed authorizing the City Treasury to borrow under the direction of the committee on the reduction of the public debt, a sum of money not exceeding $70,000, to be applied to the redemption of said debt.

Faneuil Hall was granted to George P. Milne and others, for a public meeting on the 27th instant, and to Lemuel Clark and others, on the evening of the second Sunday in March next, for a Concert of Sacred Music.

An order passed directing it to be inserted in all licenses granted to Theatres, that they shall not be kept open after sundown on Saturday nights.

Benj. J. Gurney was chosen Superintendent of Boston South bridge.

Boston High Pressure.—Mr Webster, a few days since demanded in the Senate some evidence to show that the Bank had any where acted oppressively. He was incredulous.—We give to him the following account of the most unprecedented curtailment which has been visited upon his own city, to awaken his faith:—

We stated the total loans, on the 25th July, to be $4,836,161 75
On the 26th December 2,316,034 22

Curtailed $2,520,127 53
Here is a sudden gripe, which strips a city of upwards of TWO MILLIONS AND A HALF IN FIVE MONTHS!

But we give the operation of the screws upon that industrious and enterprising city for another month (the last) in the following statement:—

On the 30th January, the loans were, viz:
On personal security 811,628 71
On bank stock 11,118 30
On other securities 20,300 00
Domestic exchange 793,116 91

1,636,163 92

Deducted from the amount 26th Dec. shows a curtailment in one month of $679,870 30

Total curtailment in six months 3,199,997 83
Mr Cheves considered six millions and a half curtailment in eight months as an "IMMENSE AND RAPID" reduction for the whole Union. What will Mr Webster think of half that amount for a single town in six months? Will he justify the cutting off two-thirds of the loans in 130 days as a fair business transaction? Will he say that the Boston Branch, with a capital of $1,500,000, can keep under discount only $1,636,000?

The Directors of the branch in Boston, who have willingly submitted to be the instruments of carrying into effect this ukase of Nicholas, intended merely to extort cries of distress, deserve the execration of their fellow citizens.—Globe.

We learn from a source that leaves no room for doubting its correctness, that an express was sent from Montgomery a few days since, with a communication to Governor Gayle, informing him that the United States officers had commenced, or were about commencing the eviction of the intruders upon the reservations of the Indians, and calling on His Excellency for efficient aid to protect the good citizens who were disturbed in their possessions. It will be recollected that the operation of the orders of the War Department to the Marshal, has been limited to those white persons who have taken possession of the Indian Reservations, and refuse to surrender them. The reply of the Governor to this application for assistance has been in substance as we understand, that the General Government were perfectly right in compelling these removals, and that he would furnish no aid whatever to those who might attempt resistance to their authority.—Mobile Register, 8th inst.

Havana, Feb. 1.—An important change in the circulating medium of this Island, has taken place by virtue of a royal order; the silver and gold coin of Mexico and South America have become legal tender for Government, Mercantile and other pursuits; and the dollars of those countries will be considered an equivalent to the pillared dollar of Spain; and the standard of their gold is fixed at $16 the doubloon.

The Fredonia Courier says, that Mr McKenzie, the rejected member of the provincial legislature of Canada, intends making an attempt to obtain his seat by force of arms, having 2000 men at his command, ready to assist in the undertaking.

An altered check, from $100 to $7,500, drawn by the City Bank of New York on the Pennsylvania Bank, was presented at the counter of that bank by a young man on Saturday last, and was refused payment.—N. Y. Com. Adv.

The Maysville, Ky., Eagle says—"We regret to learn from Frankfort, that the health of Gov. Breathitt is in such a precarious condition, that his physicians have but little, if any, hopes of his ultimate recovery."

The Grand Jury of Otsego County have presented McDowall's Journal as a public nuisance, calculated to make the vile more vicious, and corrupt the minds of both old and young by its scandalous contents.

POSTSCRIPT.

IMPORTANT FROM WASHINGTON.

¶ We have room only for the following extract from our Washington Correspondent's letter received last evening, giving an account of Mr Rives' resignation:—

"The Senate of the U. S. exhibited a scene to-day, (Saturday) of sublime interest, such as never occurred but once before within its walls. The patriotic son of proud Virginia has restored the high trust she had confided to his integrity and talents, because he could no longer retain it compatibly with his honor. The eloquent orator, the talented statesman, the distinguished diplomatist, WILLIAM C. RIVES, is no longer a Senator of Virginia in the councils of the Union. After Mr Tyler, his colleague, had read the instructions of the General Assembly to their Senators and Representatives in Congress, Mr Rives rose in his place, and, after delivering a brief but thrilling address, resigned his seat. I doubt whether there was an individual present—and the Senate was crowded—who did not envy him the honor he conferred on himself, by the noble sacrifice he made. He recognized the Legislature as the only constitutional organ to express the sentiments of the people, and to give instructions to their Senators and Representatives in Congress—and though in the present case he believed that the popular sentiment was not in accordance with the present instructions, yet he felt bound to bow to the voice of their constitutional organ, and should obey it if he could without personal dishonor—as he could not, he gave back the trust they had confided.

After he had concluded his speech, Mr Webster was the first who approached, and offered him his hand. Many others followed the example. Those who have not had the courage to imitate Mr Rives in his proud example, but still continue to misrepresent their states in the Legislature of the Union, hung down their heads in shame and confusion while he was uttering his sentiments.

After sitting a moment, Mr R. left his seat, passed over to the other side of the Senate, and, after taking leave of many gentlemen of both parties, withdrew. It was a prouder triumph than the banishment of Aristides, or the exile of Marcellus; for his respect to the constitutional organ of the people, imposed it upon his honor. It is due to Mr ADAMS, that he sat the example to Mr Rives; it is due to Massachusetts that she sat the example to Virginia."

Booth, the tragedian, has been shewing off some of his methodical madness in Louisville of late. It was not long since, that he was advertised to perform Hamlet at the Louisville Theatre; but when the expectant audience had assembled, no Mr Booth was forthcoming or could be found. This aberration created considerable excitement among the play going citizens of Louisville, and the manager was forced to make sundry verbal and written apologies on account of it. In the Louisville Herald of the 25th ult. we find the following unique

Card.—Whereas, I put an advertisement in the paper called the Focus, edited by my brother, Mr Prentice, which was a lying fabrication of mine to gain popularity, &c. and thereby injuring the reputation of a gentleman who saved my life, I hereby beg permission to state, that that gentleman is my true friend, and never trampled on me nor would on a worm, designedly; and that his courage is unquestionable either by man, god or demon. So help me God.

JUNIUS LUCIUS BOOTH.

A New Orleans editor speaking of a contemporary, calls him a chimney sweep scribbler—the other must in return look but black on him for his compliment. This is what we should call a sweeping denunciation.

Epitaph on a Miser.—Here lies one who lived unloved, and died unlamented; who denied plenty to himself, assistance to his friends, and relief to the poor; who starved his family, oppressed his neighbors and plagued himself to gain what he could not enjoy. At last death, more merciful to him than he was to himself, released him from care and his family from want; and here he lies with the muckworm he imitated, and with the dirt he loved, in fear of a resurrection, lest his heirs should have spent the money he left behind; having laid up no treasure where moth and rust doth not corrupt, nor thieves break through and steal.

It is said to be in contemplation to export a quantity of turf to England. One manifest benefit would result from the introduction of our native "timber," into the sister island, it being notorious that where turf is burned bugs disappear. Turf and cut granite would be a far better cargo for return colliers than buying ballast, which cannot be disposed of at the other side of the water.—Dublin Despatch.

An Envoy from one of the German Courts, who has recently left England to represent his sovereign at the Court of Vienna, during his stay in London, had a large brass plate on his door, on which was engraved, "Scrape your feet before you enter."

"Religious Zeal," says Bolingbroke, "may boast this horrid advantage over civil zeal, that the effects of it have been more sanguinary, and the malice more unrelenting."
